This week in math we learned how to solve double digit addition problems with a missing addend. We also started multiplication! In Social Studies, we are learning about the Early Explorers of the Americas. In art, we collaborated to draw something we are thankful for. Each team of 4 had one marker with 4 string tied to it. They had to work together and communicate effectively to draw. It was fun and tough.

On Tuesday, we have a field trip to MLHS for Future Lancers. We will load up cars at 9:10 and return in time for Jimmy Johns lunch.

Grade 4

We are moving through 2nd quarter well in the 4th grade classroom! Students could not believe we finished the first 13 weeks of school already. We dove into nonfiction this week and students created a book bin with interesting books they want to read. In Social Studies we are preparing for our first test on the geography of the United States. Help students review this weekend with lesson quizzes and the reading checks throughout chapter 1 in their books.

We look forward to our field trip to MLHS next Tuesday! Please sign and return the permission slip in Friday Folders. Also let me know if you are able to drive for this ½ day field trip. Have a blessed weekend!

This past week was a little bumpy on the homework front. I really try to make the homework load manageable by providing the students ample time during the school day for them to complete their assignments. Even with that being done, a number of students have been struggling getting work done and getting it done using the very best of their abilities.

Please continue to check over graded papers and talk with your children about their learning.

Studies consistently show that the more engaged parents are in the learning of their children, the more engaged their children will be in their learning, as well. Thank you for your partnership!

~ Please also make sure that your children are working towards their Accelerated Reader goals. They need to have 12 points by the end of the 2nd quarter which is Friday, January 12.

Have a great weekend!
