WE SING IN THE 8AM SERVICE THIS SUNDAY. Please have your child report to the balcony by 7:45am.

This week in English, we wrote a descriptive paragraph. Students revised every sentence, peers helped with conventions, and students typed up their draft. You'll be impressed. We got back to "normal English," and started learning how to use quotation marks correctly. We completed our snack book, Belly Up, and our study book in reading, Because of Winn Dixie. Students are starting new book club books and making jots and story mountains analyzing character traits and relationships.

Grade 4

The students have the privilege of singing praises to our Savior Sunday in the 8am service. Please meet in the balcony at 7:45am. This week in English, we drafted a persuasive essay with reasons and explanation to convince someone in our lives they should or should not do something. Students have all the capitals and a map to study for the Midwest Region. Start reviewing a few minutes each day so these are committed to memory for the test in the next week.

Book Clubs are in full swing and students are doing a great job keeping up with reading each night and discussing with their groups. Please continue to check over math homework. Students having this extra look by parents are doing a great job and growing their math understanding. Let me know if you'd like an answer key to support this check at home.
Have a blessed weekend!
